

In our next text, family members' personalities, their relationships with one another, and one character's memories of the past are an important part of the story. Before we begin In the Time of the Butterflies, consider your own family dynamic.

1. Fill in the family tree for your family. Include names and corresponding personality traits, interests, and passions for each family member.
Add and subtract boxes as needed.

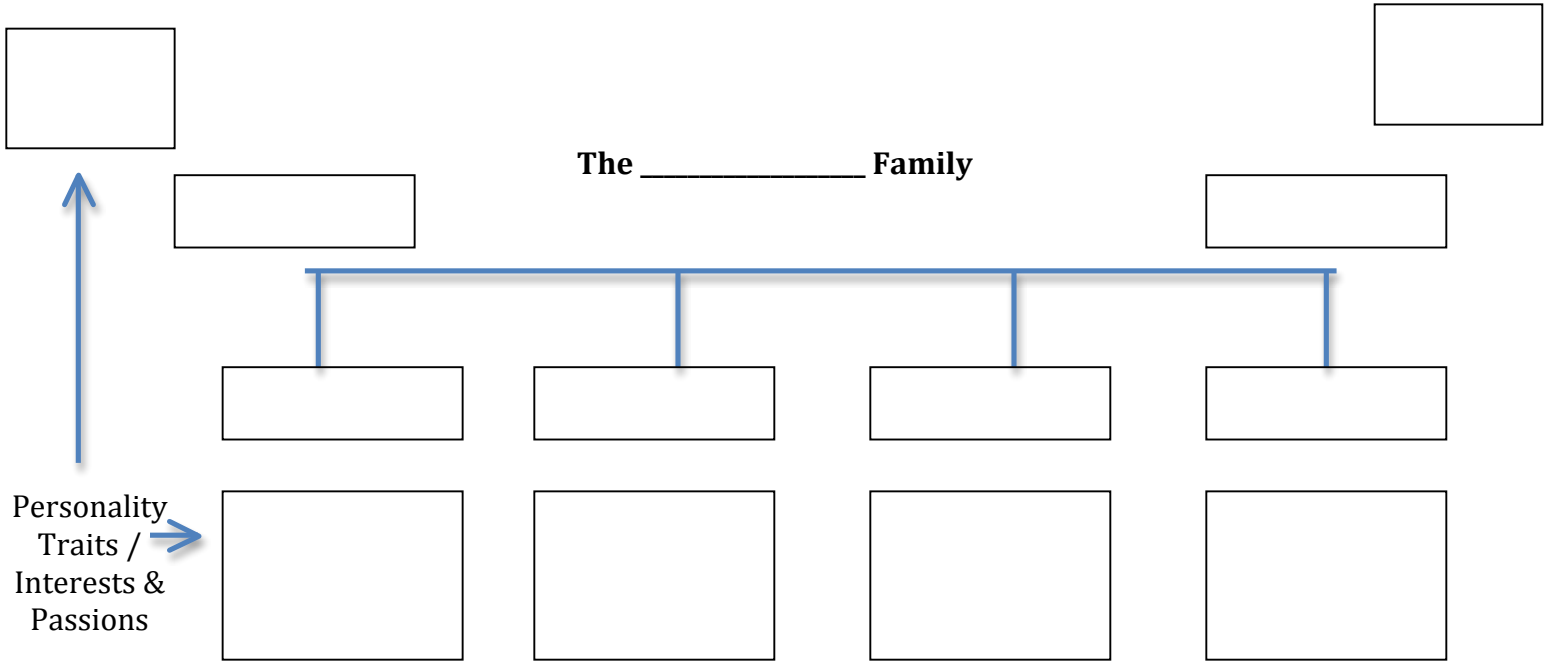

2. Once you finish, please reexamine the traits and think about your family members listed above. Answer the three questions below in a single paragraph:

- How do the traits above influence the ways that your family deals with a conflict?
- What role do you play in the family dynamic when there is conflict?
- What roles do your siblings / parents play during times of trouble?

3. Now, think of one memory from your past that involves family members listed above. It can be happy, sad, neutral, filled with drama, or just a simple image that pops into your head. Describe the memory, then reflect: Why is this memory important?

Now that you've reflected on your own family and one memory, meet the characters in the text of In the Time of the Butterflies.

Please fill in the family tree for the family in the book:
