

Today, continue to use the Moth approach to storytelling:
Recall and write a story based on a very basic prompt. Here are the prompts for today.
Please write about:

CRUSH

- A time that you had a crush on someone and what happened next
- A time you were crushed by something that happened to you or someone else
- A time that you felt crushed after learning something you didn't know before
- A time that you had a crush on someone and then they did something to stop your crush in a heartbeat
- Any other story that comes to mind when you think about the word "crush"

SECRETS & CONFESSIONS

- A time that you kept a secret for a long time and how it felt to keep it – or reveal it
- A time that someone told you a secret or confessed something to you and how it impacted you
- A time that you made a confession and what happened next
- Any other personal story that comes to mind when you hear the word "secret" or "confession"

When you finish jotting down some ideas for the above prompts, choose one and write the story of your memory and reflections.
